Multidrug resistance (MDR) in bacteria is a growing public health problem, characterized by reduced susceptibility to more than one antimicrobial agent. Although the serotype paratyphi A and S. typhi are the most common causes of enteric fever, the impact of MDR among typhoid and paratyphoid fever remains uncertain. We conducted a national surveillance study to assess the influence of MDR on the epidemiology of typhoid and paratyphoid fever in Israel. Ten public health laboratories and a national laboratory participated in the study. From January to July 2010, we screened a total of 12,608 blood and cerebrospinal fluid cultures. MDR was defined as resistance to > or =3 classes of antimicrobial agents, including β-lactams, aminoglycosides, and fluoroquinolones. During this period, we detected 1874 cases of typhoid fever and 412 cases of paratyphoid fever, 1457 cases of S. typhi, and 583 cases of S. paratyphi A. Of the S. typhi isolates, 69% were susceptible to all antimicrobials, whereas 22% were MDR. This decreased to 1.4% in the case of S. parat b7e8fdf5c8

She thought she had lost all ability to have an orgasm. She explained: "I am unable to climax in any of the sexual acts I've tried, or watch films with a sexual theme. I have tried to come during every possible act on the planet, but cannot." The reader explained she's having sex three times a week with her partner. "We have strong, mutually satisfying sex. We kiss a lot, and he touches my body in the right places," she said. Yet in the 45 years she's known him, she said she has never gotten an erection. "Nothing ever happens. I try to think about sex, and focus on my emotions and feelings and energy (it's been suggested this is an energy thing), and I feel a sudden rise in my energy, then it dissipates quickly. I spend hours daily exploring these possibilities and no matter how hard I try, I am not able to get a single hard-on or reach orgasm, no matter how much I want to," she said. "I think of the woman I am, the same woman I have been since I was a child, and I'm not sure how to handle this." Sex is a fundamental part of our lives. We do it with great enjoyment and it has a profound impact on us as individuals and on our relationship. It is part of our evolution and integral to our development. Yet we're constantly bombarded with messages about sexuality that can damage the way we view it, and ourselves. Sex is a fundamental part of our lives. We do it with great enjoyment and it has a profound impact on us as individuals and on our relationship. My client is telling me that she's never had
